

Kennedy Assassination Probe Continues

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Richard Schweiker says his staff is pursuing a number of leads on the assassination of President Kennedy that could link the 1963 slaying to either a pro-or anti-Cuban conspiracy.

The leads were not disclosed in the Senate intelligence committee's report on the assassination, Schweiker said. The committee report was released Wednesday, revealing a pattern of noncooperation between key CIA and FBI officials and the Warren Commission, which concluded that Lee Harvey Oswald acted alone in killing Kennedy.

One lead mentioned in the Senate committee report, involving the "strange travel" of a Cuban-American with a possible tie to Oswald and Cuban intelligence, also is being pursued. Staffers are checking a reported sighting of the man in Dallas at the time of the Kennedy assassination in November 1963, Schweiker said.

The Pennsylvania Republican refused to disclose any details concerning one "very hot lead" that would link the assassination to an anti-Cuban group or another "very promising" lead involving pro-Cuban forces, saying to do so would jeopardize the investigation.

Schweiker commented following the release of a 106-page report Wednesday which said the CIA and FBI failed to follow up leads that "might have substantially affected the course of the investigation" into whether there was a conspiracy to kill Kennedy.

The report said "it is difficult to understand" why the CIA did not investigate the possibility that Cuba's Fidel Castro knew about a 1963 CIA plot against his life and ordered Kennedy's death in retaliation.

The plot, involving an undercover agent code-named AM-LASH continued even though "reports received by the CIA during the fall of 1963 contained information which should have raised questions about the operation's security," suggesting AM-LASH may have been a double agent working with Cuban intelligence.

Agency officials talked to AM-LASH in October 1963 and on Nov. 22 — the day Kennedy was shot — AM-LASH was given a poison pen device by the CIA with which to kill Castro, according to the report.

Schweiker said he would be unable to pursue the possibility that the AM-

LASH plot triggered Kennedy's assassination because members of his staff do not have needed clearances for access to CIA documents.

Schweiker said his investigators also are at a dead end in pursuing a lead that involves a mysterious Cubana Airlines flight from Mexico City to Cuba on the night of Kennedy's death.

The report said that in December 1963 the CIA received information that the flight was delayed for five hours awaiting an unidentified passenger who arrived in a twin-engine aircraft at 10:30 p.m. and boarded the Cubana plane without passing through customs, where he would have needed to identify himself.

However, Schweiker said his investigators are still tracking the "strange travel" patterns of a Cuban-American mentioned in the report as having a possible involvement in the assassination. The man may have had contact with Oswald.

Schweiker said his investigators are now checking a reported sighting of the man in Dallas at the time of the assassination.

The Senate committee report said it is not known why "senior officials in the CIA and FBI permitted the Warren Commission to reach its conclusions without all relevant information" but added that it is possible that the officials "made conscious decisions not to disclose potentially important information."

According to the report, senior government officials "wanted the investigation completed promptly and all conspiracy rumors dispelled." Within 14 hours of Kennedy's death, the FBI narrowed the focus of its investigation to Oswald alone and within weeks issued a report concluding Oswald was the sole assassin, the report said.

Carter Says VP Choice Could Be Woman, Black

WASHINGTON (AP) — Jimmy Carter says his vice presidential choice is likely to have a Washington background and could be a woman or a black. But the former Georgia governor isn't ready to name names.

Carter, in the capital for a series of meetings today with congressional leaders, says he has not yet whittled down a list of 10 or 12 persons he said he is considering as his running mate.

Carter is expected to win first-ballot nomination as the Democrats' presidential candidate when the party convenes its national convention in New York next month.

He commented in a brief news conference Wednesday night after flying from New York, where he delivered a foreign policy speech and took part in five fund-raising events to help cover campaign debts.

The Republican presidential battle resumes today when President Ford and Ronald Reagan step up their delegate hunt. GOP delegates will be selected at four state conventions this coming weekend.

Carter planned separate meetings today with House and Senate Democrats; House Speaker Carl Albert and Majority Leader Thomas O'Neill; Sens. Robert Byrd of West Virginia; Edmund Muskie of Maine, and Henry Jackson of Washington.

He also was to meet with Democratic Party Chairman Robert Strauss.

Carter also said he has decided to decline President Ford's offer of an FBI background check of prospective running mates.

"The more I think about it, the more I think it would be inappropriate," said Carter, who expressed concern last week that such an investigation could violate privacy rights.

But he said that before the Democratic National Convention, he or a staff member will conduct personal interviews with "one or more" of those under consideration for the No. 2 position on the ticket.

Carter told reporters "the likelihood is that it will be someone with Washington experience," although he said there are some persons on the list without that background.

He said in reply to questions that he was "seriously" considering either a black or a woman, but refused to comment in greater detail.

Carter asked his polling organization recently to test public opinion of vice presidential possibilities, including Sen. Alan Cranston of California, who took himself out of the race Wednesday night, saying vice-presidential speculation was hurting his campaign for Senate Whip.

Carter now has 1,487 of the 1,505 delegates needed for the nomination, according to an Associated Press tally. He could go over the top when North

Kissinger Peddles Majority Rule View

GRAFENAU, West Germany (AP) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger completed two days of talks on U.S. support for majority rule in southern Africa with Prime Minister John Vorster of South Africa today with no announced concrete results.

"The prime minister on his part will give further thought to what was discussed in these two days and the secretary of state will report to the President," Robert L. Funseth, the U.S. spokesman, told reporters.

"They will keep in touch and follow up on these matters."

Kissinger and Vorster were alone for an hour and a half in Kissinger's hotel here in the rolling Bavarian countryside. They then were joined for another hour by members of their delegations, including South African Foreign Minister Hilgard Muller and William E. Schauefele Jr., the U.S. assistant secretary of state for African affairs.

Kissinger has said he is seeking a way with Vorster to avoid a "racial war" in southern Africa. This involves pressing for negotiations for a black takeover in Rhodesia, supporting self-determination in the territory of South-West Africa, or Namibia, and, evidently, urging Vorster to move toward majority rule in his own country.

Kissinger said after their first four-hour meeting Wednesday that he and Vorster had a "very full review of the situation in southern Africa," and "we indicated the direction which we think things should move."

"Obviously, no conclusions could be reached," Kissinger said.

There was no comment from Vorster.

Kissinger is trying to get Vorster to steer Rhodesian Prime Minister Ian Smith into new talks with Rhodesian black nationalist leaders. He emphasized that the United States is not backing away from its support for a negotiated settlement.

Italy Ruling Party Has Old Problems

ROME (AP) — Italy's Christian Democratic party was faced today with the same problem it had before the election last weekend: how to get the Socialist party to join it in a coalition government without taking the Communists, too.

Because the Christian Democrats fell 53 seats short of a majority in the Chamber of Deputies and campaigned on a promise to keep the second-place Communists out of the government, they can only put together a governing majority by an alliance with the Socialists and other minor parties.

But "the Socialists are only available for the formation of a government that associates all the leftist parties," Socialist leader Enrico Manca said in a television debate Wednesday.

The Communists, despite sizable gains in both houses of Parliament, said they could wait.

"In us there is no anxiousness, no hurry," Communist party leader Enrico Berlinguer told the party newspaper Paese Sera. But he warned, "Nothing good can be achieved without a positive relationship with the Communists."

Meanwhile, he said, the party would concentrate on trying to win some of the top positions in the new parliament when it meets next month.

The Communists might be satisfied with a voice in the formation of government policy rather than places in the cabinet. But this unofficial relationship would not commit them to support the government, and it is not likely to be enough to get a Socialist commitment to the government.

The Socialists were burned last winter by such an informal Christian Democratic-Communist accord rejecting the liberal abortion law the Socialists wanted. In retaliation, they demanded that the Communists be included in the government to force them to shoulder responsibility for the Christian Democrats' refusal to enact economic and social legislation demanded by the Socialists.

The Christian Democrats are buoyant at having repulsed the Communist attempt to replace them as Italy's top party. But they stood still in the election and have vowed a "renewal" which they hope will help bring the Socialists, Democratic Socialists and Republicans back into the center-left alliance which has governed Italy off and on since 1962. However, with the party split into nine factions, it is doubtful how much of a new look can be achieved.

The drastic increase in malpractice insurance coverage was of major concern to the Berger Hospital Board of Governors Wednesday night at its regular monthly meeting.

Hospital administrator Charles Rideout advised the board that policies for hospitals being renewed after June 1 will be increased by 160 per cent. In the case of Berger Hospital, that figure totals approximately $50,000 increase in the premium.

Rideout also stated that physicians can expect an increase of 140 per cent in policies being renewed after the same date. After much discussion of the problem at hand, the board authorized Rideout to continue an investigation of the possibility of fighting such an increase.

If the premium prices stand as currently presented, the hospital can expect to see an increase in operating costs of $2 to $2.50 per patient day.

The board viewed the financial statement for the month of May as presented by Harry Clifton, chairman of the finance committee and found that business had been good for that time. The hospital operated at an 80 per cent occupancy which was less than for May, 1975 but Clifton pointed out that the 88 per cent occupancy for the year to date is still running ahead of the occupancy of the same period one year ago.

There were 254 admissions and 255 discharges; 38 babies born; 1082 emergency room visits; 84 operations; 1,129 X-ray procedures.

Operating bills were approved for payment in the total amount of $71,351.83. Construction and building bills were presented by the administrator and discussed by the board. The final payment of $2,191 was approved for payment to States Electric and the final payment of $15,802 was approved to Steward Construction.

The board voted to hold the architect's bill since he had included in it a charge for researching the cost of adding a morgue to the construction of the new addition. At the time the quotations for the morgue were presented, the board felt the price was excessive and omitted it from the plans.

Rideout was authorized to contact architect Dan Carmichael to question the high cost of doing the morgue research before making the final payment.

The board also approved payment of the bill presented by Sauer Inc. upon satisfactory completion of certain work which remains uncompleted. Approval was given for the purchase of some office equipment.

Rideout reported to the board that he had contracted with a Newark physician, Dr. Edward Carlin, to cover the emergency room at Berger. Dr. Carlin and four Columbus physicians who have signed the contract will

Jet Breaks Apart With 103 Aboard

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — An Allegheny Airlines jetliner with 103 persons aboard broke apart while trying to land at Philadelphia's International Airport during a freak storm. No one was killed.

One hundred persons were treated at various hospitals. Twenty-six of them were admitted, 18 in serious condition. The pilot, Carl Boyer of Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., was in critical condition with a fractured skull.

The tail section of the twin-engine DC9 — Flight 121 bound from Providence, R.I., to Memphis, Tenn., with stops at Hartford, Conn., and Philadelphia — came to rest 400 feet from the fuselage.

Both engines also broke off the wings as the plane skidded off the busy airport's main runway at 5:10 p.m. and just missed ramming a TWA plane waiting to take off.

Brad Dunbar of the National Transportation Safety Board said the voice and data recorders were recovered from the cockpit and sent to Washington for study.

"It's much too early to speculate on a cause," said Dunbar, adding that a full investigation would be launched today. "After studying the tail section and fuselage, we'll be able to tell if the tail hit first or the landing gear collapsed or what."

Several witnesses said it appeared the landing gear crumpled. Others said the heavy rains and high winds, which occurred only at the airport area for a period of several minutes, caused excessive turbulence.

Corporate Bribery Bill Cleared

WASHINGTON (AP) — A bill making overseas bribery by U.S. corporations illegal passed its first Senate test but remains under a constitutional cloud.

The bill approved Tuesday by the Senate Banking Committee was prompted by recent disclosures that U.S. corporations such as the Lockheed Aircraft Corp. have paid out millions of dollars in bribes to foreign officials and political parties to win sales.

Construction Firm Incorporated

Articles of incorporation have been filed in Columbus with Secretary of State Ted W. Brown by C.P. Construction Company Inc. of Ashville.

Charles P. Neal is the incorporator. David L. Kraft, Ashville attorney, filed the articles and was named agent for the company.

By making it a U.S. crime for a corporation to bribe an official or foreign political party to stimulate or increase business, the bill would go far beyond a White House proposal that would require American companies to report such bribes to an U.S. government agency.

Under the White House proposal, there would be no U.S. criminal action as a result of reporting a bribe. However, the U.S. government might share the information with the foreign government involved or make the information public.

U.S. laws now make it illegal for American corporations to bribe American officials. But there are no U.S. laws covering bribes of foreign officials.

The bill, written by Banking Committee Chairman William Proxmire, D-Wis., sets the penalty for conviction at a twoyear jail sentence, a $10,000 fine or both.

The bill is not intended to apply to small payments made to expedite service or to persuade government officials to cut red tape. It is intended to apply only to payments to stimulate or increase business.

President Ford recently said a flat prohibition on overseas bribery was unenforceable. The theory of the White House proposal is that a company wouldn't pay bribes that it would later have to disclose.

The issue involving the Senate measure is whether an American citizen can be prosecuted for a crime that takes place entirely outside the legal jurisdiction of the United States.

The constitutionality of Proxmire's approach was questioned by Sen. Robert Morgan, D-N.C. Proxmire conceded his bill probably could not apply to an U.S. corporation that offered a bribe if that offer was conceived and executed by the firm's overseas officials with no knowledge or participation by U.S.-based officers.

He said the bill would cover corporate officers in the United States who directed or condoned payment of such a bribe.

Proxmire asked for more study on the bill's constitutionality. The bill is expected to come to the Senate floor for a vote sometime after Congress returns from its convention recess on July 19.

Marital Skids

If it is true that a nation's success is mirrored in its family unit, the United States has some serious rebuilding to do. Probably not in the nation's history has the family come under as severe a strain as it is today, and many families are not making it.

Last year, more than a million American marriages went up in divorce, not only a record but a number which was twice the divorce number of 10 years ago and three times the number in 1950. The casual acceptance of marital vows and the equally casual abandonment of them when the going becomes tough is a blot on the American character.

Never mind the excuses about greater honesty between marriage partners or the crutch of a sexual revolution.

It is still a rare marriage which cannot survive if both partners really want it to.

It is not surprising to find that nearly half the divorces are made by couples under age 30. The early years frequently are the most difficult. It is more surprising to learn that one-fourth of the break-ups come to men and women past 40.

Food Faddists

EDITOR'S NOTE: Phyllis Battelle is on vacation. While she is away, she has asked some of her friends to write guest columns. Today's guest is Dr. Thomas H. Jukes, a distinguished biochemist and nutritional scientist at the University of California, Berkeley.

By DR. THOMAS H. JUKES

NEW YORK — Myths, misinformation and a myopic viewpoint about food and how it is grown today could literally do us all in.

As a professor of medical physics and a discoverer in the field of vitamins in the 1930s, I am concerned with current fads such as organically grown, natural foods and diets that threaten good health.

Myths regarding foods go far back into ancient history. Today, however, these matters are big business. Some fads, including the stranger-than-fiction diets — usually in expensive book form — have serious implications concerning the health and welfare of their followers.

Fad diets are with us all the time and each year more and more books are written on the subject. Just don't be snared into the all-on-food types of regimen — all rice, all grapefruit, all bananas, etc. Two that have created real health hazards, the all-rice diet that can cause scurvy, and the "low-to-no" carbohydrate diet because it upsets the metabolism and can trigger a variety of health problems.

In the 1940s, science licked scurvy — a deficiency of vitamin C that can result from a diet almost exclusively of rice — and it's ironic that it should reappear. Faddists have extolled the benefits of the macrobiotic diet to such an extent that a number of young followers have suffered from scurvy and some even death.

Appetites may wane somewhat during warm-weather months but the safest way to lose weight is simply to cut down on calories. Keep your diet varied — a good mix of all the four food groups: meat, fish and egg group; breads and cereals group; milk and dairy product group and fruits and vegetables group.

We love statistics and we're impressed when we hear about the number of pounds of products we consume each year. Sugar for example. This is a good food when consumed in moderation, as is practically every other food. The figures you should be interested in are your own and the total calories you consume each day.

It would be frightening to think what would happen if the faddists succeeded in preventing the use of pesticides and additives. Our food supplies would run short. We simply could not feed ourselves, let alone help feed foreign countries as we do now.

Claims that foods are poisoned by pesticides and food additives can be answered by stating that we know more about the safety of food additives than we know about naturally occurring toxicants in foods.

No consumer has ever been harmed by a pesticide when used on crops in accordance with regulations and directions. Stories about pesticide residues in foods causing cancer have no foundation; indeed DDT has been shown to protect laboratory animals against cancer caused by a known carcinogen.

The growing plant does not know the difference between natural and chemical fertilizers because there is no difference. The nitrogen, phosphorous and potassium present in animal manures and plant residues in the soil are used as plant food only when they are broken down to nitrate, ammonia, phosphate and potassium molecules. These are the same chemical units supplied by chemical fertilizers.

We know some foods do contain poison but in minute quantities and since they are not cumulative, they do not present a hazard to health. In addition, we help the situation somewhat ourselves. For example, there's confusion today about nitrates and nitrites. We produce 90 per cent of the nitrates ourselves — bacteria in our mouths change the nitrates in vegetables to nitrites in our saliva.

"Organic" foods may cost an average of 85 per cent more than foods at the supermarket. Either save the money or perhaps add it to summer recreation. I love to climb mountains. You may prefer your own thing — from a game of tennis to swimming at every opportunity this summer. Make it an exercise, mentally and physically, if you want to keep healthy and alive with energy.

Business World

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — In case you missed the original announcement, it should be recorded that in May the average purchase price of a new single-family home fell to $46,300, a drop of $2,200 from the record-high price a month earlier.

It is understandable that you might believe those figures to be the result of a typographical gremlin, but they are not. It is possible too that they are another of those well-known statistical flukes, but maybe not.

The fact is that there are some solid reasons why the prices of some new homes might have dropped. Some are smaller editions, many are minus the refinements of a year ago. And some sellers have been having problems.

This latter cannot be ignored; if you think you've had troubles in buying a house your local builder can reduce you to tears with his frustrations in trying to sell a house, even at a minuscule profit.

So what do we deduce from this latest news? That it pays to wait? If you so conclude you are battling the odds. You might very well find yourself in the same trap that snared many young householders of the 1960s, who were convinced that housing prices would stabilize.

Well, they did, for a while. But while housing prices were stable, and only briefly, interest rates rose. And they rose and rose, fully 50 per cent in 10 years. And they were still rising, as of May.

Housing prices weren't stable for long either. They too rose and rose, doubling in about 10 years and leaving those who waited holding in their fist a down payment that grew less and less adequate.

Although nobody can say the next 10 years will be a repetition of the past 10, and despite the recent good news, the trend is still upward for both purchase price and financing. What happened in May isn't likely to be repeated.

Price for land, materials and labor are ascending. Many areas are imposing costly building limitations in order to preserve the purity of their water. Operating costs are rising too.

Will there be a technological breakthrough that might lower costs? Attempts so far have yet to prove themselves as permanent or broadly acceptable, as many have failed.

Remember the factory house? It's still being produced and the quality is good. But mass production hasn't really caught on; the industry is still largely one of small stick builders operating locally.

The no-frill house? Promising. But some builders maintain they really can't produce a quality house by stripping away distinctive features and then manage to sell at a profit. Still, it continues to offer limited hope.

Mobile homes? Possibilities. But shipments of these units, which had surged to one-half million units several years ago are now back to one-half that, although rising again. Bears watching.

Cooperatives and condominiums? Many buyers have had very successful experiences, but many people still resist them as a substitute for conventional housing. And in some the prices and maintenance costs are high. Cluster housing? In this technique the individual lots are reduced in size in order to provide more common green spaces. Some have been successful, but for the most part they haven't substantially lowered costs.

The fact remains that most Americans like what is called conventional housing, and there is at the moment rather little long-range hope of any meaningful lowering of prices while quality is maintained.

Speaking Of Your Health

By Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

Mrs. J. R., La.

Dear Mrs. R.: A prolapsed uterus (fallen womb) occurs when the muscles and ligaments that normally hold the uterus in place become stretched and weakened. This is rather common in women who have had a number of children.

The operation for the repair of this condition is highly successful. It can relieve the "bearing down" sensations and also help the bladder and rectal disturbances that can be associated with a fallen womb.

Is a hearing aid that fits into glasses as helpful as one that goes behind the ear?

Mr. T. V., S.C.

Dear Mr. V.: With both types of instruments an attachment runs to a mold which is placed in the outer ear canal.

A hearing aid is effective only if it increases serviceable hearing. If it does not accomplish this, it does not matter where the instrument is hidden. Far too many people with a hearing aid concentrate on finding one that is "inconspicuous" rather than one that helps them to hear. Such concession to vanity leads to expensive disappointment.

I've been told that I have a fallen womb as a result of having had three children. Is the operation for this usually successful?

A complete blood study will show the presence of this or any other bleeding tendency.

Specific treatment can then be beneficial.

John Dean Called Swinger In Square White House

KANSAS CITY (AP) — John Dean has been characterized by H. R. Haldeman, former chief of staff under President Richard M. Nixon, as the "hotdog swinger in the square Nixon White House."

Haldeman, who resigned from the White House staff in 1973 during the Watergate investigation said, in a copyright series distributed by Universal Press Syndicate of Kansas City and coauthored with columnist Joe Scott, that Dean would never have gotten his job as counsel to Nixon if he had been given a routine White House check.

"I recruited him but never saw his FBI dossier," Haldeman said. "I assumed that Dean had been cleared at Justice. My former staff would be amused to know that, regarding Dean, I violated my own cardinal rule laid down for all subordinates — 'Don't assume.'"

In the fourth installment in the five-part series, Haldeman said if he had seen Dean's dossier, "allegations about a conflict of interest charge, however slight, involving his prior affiliation with a law firm would have been enough to concern me about the smoke, whether or not there was any fire."

Haldeman said "... Dean's relationship with the President, despite suggestions to the contrary, did not exist until Watergate, and only then as a project officer."

Haldeman raised questions of possible Central Intelligence Agency involvement in Watergate, but did not provide any answers.

He said that Alexander Butterfield, who revealed the existence of the White House tapes, sought to become a part of the Nixon team on his own initiative when he was about to become an Air Force general.

"I have never understood why he insisted, against my advice, on

Dear Editor

This past Friday evening and Saturday a collection was taken door to door for the Larry Leeson Jr. Fund Foundation.

We, the committee for the project, cannot find words to express our thanks to all the people of Circleville and surrounding areas for their most gracious donations. The response was breathtaking and donations are still coming in by mail from everywhere.

We wish to especially thank all the people who volunteered to help in this door to door collection. The CB Radio Patrol, friends and all the teenagers who took their weekend to help.

Also thanks to the many calls received from persons wanting to help in various ways. Every call was given special attention.

If for some reason someone was missed during the door to door visit and you wish to donate, please mail it to Mrs. Helen M. Sowers, 108 Parkview Ave., Circleville or call 474-2497 or 474-1612 and the contribution will be picked up.

Don't let it be said that Circleville does not have fine people living here. The subject will be argued by many people and proven.

HAKONE, Japan (AP) — Earthquake predictions soon will be as precise as forecasting a shower in the rainy season, an organization of amateur seismologists here claims.

Using wells and homemade equipment, members of the Namazu No Kai, or Catfish Club, have predicted accurately two moderately strong tremors in the Tokyo-Yokohama region May 13 and June 6.

Dear Abby:

By Abigail Van Buren

Moved By Column To Carry Kidney Card

DEAR ABBY: Today in your column I read a letter from Mrs. R.D. Watt of Bloomington, Ind., whose son, David, was killed in an auto accident. She said her son had carried a signed UNIFORM DONOR CARD issued by the Kidney Foundation stating his wishes to donate his kidneys at death, but because his wallet had not been thoroughly examined at the scene of the accident, and they (his parents) were too grief-stricken at the time to think of it, David's wishes were not carried out.

I want Mrs. Watt to know that after reading her letter I called the Kidney Foundation and requested a donor card so I could be like David Watt, who signed such a card in hopes of saving someone's life.

DEAR FEELING BETTER: Your thoughtful gesture will not only comfort David's parents; there is no telling how many others will be inspired to follow your generous example. Bless you.

DEAR ABBY: Last Christmas I became engaged to a fine young man from Los Angeles. We planned a summer wedding. I was born on a farm in Iowa. My parents sold the farm and are now living in a retirement village near L.A.

My future in-laws are quite well-to-do and social. My fiancé's mother announced our engagement in two newspapers. I couldn't believe my eyes when I read that I was "the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. So and So and a graduate of the University of Iowa!"

When I asked my fiancé's mother why she did such a thing she said, "I couldn't very well have said you were a former waitress whose father had been a farmer!"

Abby, I'm not ashamed of being a former waitress OR a farmer's daughter. My parents saw the announcement and were humiliated. They think perhaps we should forego plans for a large wedding because his relatives and friends will be asking my father what kind of "doctor" he is and what I majored in in college.

I've always wanted a lovely wed-

The quakes, which registered 4.4 and 3 on the Japanese scale of 7, were forecast two days in advance by carefully gauging the water level in numerous observation wells, said Yasue Oki, 43, founder and president of the 106-member group.

Oki said in an interview that well water has been observed to rise three quarters of an inch to an inch two days before a tremor, then another inch or so the following day. "The water table begins dropping several hours before the main shock," he said.

"Catfish Club members have experienced the same pattern in 20 cases, so we believe we can apply this technique to correctly predict earthquakes — just like weathermen forecasting the weather," he said.

A similar method developed in China gave them encouragement but little practical help because the Chinese reports lacked diagrams of water tables, he said.

Chinese seismologists recently claimed to have predicted several major quakes by changes in water level and in the particular behavior of animals prior to an earthquake.

His approach to forecasting quakes has brought some criticism from established seismological research institutes, but mainly the group has received encouragement, Oki said.

Launched in April, the club already has members in seven prefectures surrounding Tokyo. Oki said he hopes to have chapters nationwide by January.

Oki said the group took its name from the legendary catfish which reside under the earth and create tremors when angry. "The Japanese people believed this for thousands of years," he added.

Earthquakes are a major concern in Japan, where 142,802 persons perished in the 1923 quake which destroyed much of Tokyo and Yokohama. The government supports some earthquake research, but so far no money has gone to the Catfish Club, complained Oki.

"But it costs nothing to join," he added, "and our philosophy is very good while our equipment very poor."

Oki, a scientist who heads the Kanagawa prefectural Hot Springs Research Institute at Hakone, 70 miles southwest of Tokyo, and fellow workers conceived the well water technique after examining changes in hot springs before and during quakes.

Oki says that while established Japanese research centers utilize costly seismographs and tilt meters, the Catfish Club relies on the ordinary well and a homemade water gauge — "very cheap, but very sensitive" — to predict tremors. The gauges cost about $3, he said.

Logan Elm Garden Club held its June meeting Wednesday in the home of Miss Yvonne Drake, Route 1, Laurelville.

Meditation by Mrs. Judson Beougher included the reading of "Heritage" by Lorraine Good and "The Town Of Don't-You-Worry." Roll call was answered by 12 members answering the question "Do you make garden like your dad did?"

The schedule for the Pickaway County Fair Flower Show was read and discussed. Members were asked to participate.

Mrs. Winferd Dumm, president, named the nominating committee for the coming year as Mrs. Alma McKenzie, Mrs. Doris Edwards and Mrs. Donna Beougher.

American Legion Unit Entertains Hospital Patients

Games and visiting with 30 patients of Ward 1C, Veterans Administration Hospital, Chillicothe was the entertainment for the evening during the June visit of Unit 134 American Legion Auxiliary.

Refreshments of ice cream, brownies and punch were served by Mary Stephens VA&R chairman, assisted by unit members, Maggie Mavis Rose Ann Stinson, Iola McClarren and Jo Hunter.

Two-hundred fifty-seven ditty bags, magazines and paper back novels, were delivered to Voluntary Services for distribution. The increasing number of patients being admitted to Chillicothe VA has made the need for ditty bags greater than ever before. Anyone having scrap material, about 10 by 15 inches and not too thin, who would care to help during this time of need, can call Mrs. Stephens after 4 p.m. 474-5795 or 474-2533 anytime. It will be picked up at the person's convenience.

Soviet Union May Rebound From Poor Wheat Harvest

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite problems with its winter grain crop planted last fall, the Soviet Union may recover significantly from last year's poor harvest and produce about 190 million metric tons of grain in 1976, according to the Agriculture Department.

A department task force said Tuesday that Soviet grain still faces "several critical weeks" of development. But farmers were able to plant 128 million hectares for the 1976 harvest, about the same as last year. A hectare is about 2.47 acres.

Although the department's estimate would put the Russian crop 7.3 per cent below Moscow's 1976 grain goal of 205 million tons, it would be 36 per cent more than last year's skimpy harvest of 139.9 million tons, the smallest in a decade. A metric ton is 2,205 pounds.

The short harvest last year forced Russia to buy foreign grain, including about 16.5 million tons of U.S. wheat and corn — about 12 million of corn and 4.5 million wheat — from the 1975 harvest.

Experts said Russia will continue to need foreign grain in the year ahead but that imports probably will drop from their recent levels.

The report also cautioned that the new estimate — the first by USDA on total Soviet grain this year — could vary from the 190 million tons now indicated, depending on the weather ahead. "The chance is probably still as much as one in three that the final output will be outside a range of 180-200 million tons," the report said.

Winter grain suffered substantial damage and now is expected to produce 44 million tons, 20 per cent less than normal and about the same as last year's reduced crop. But spring-planted grain, which makes up most of the Russian supply, is doing well, the report said.

"Spring barley, for example, which is produced in the European part of the USSR, now seems likely to total well above the 1973 record of 51.8 million tons," the report said. "The area of corn which is intended to be harvested for grain is well above the unusually low 1975 harvested figure."

In addition to the 16.5 million tons of U.S. wheat and corn bought the past season, Russia has ordered 2.2 million tons for 1976-77. That is grain to be counted against a new longrange agreement calling for Russia to buy at least six million tons and up to eight million tons annually over five years beginning with deliveries this Oct. 1.

The Soviets can have more than eight million tons in a year if they want but must get approval from U.S. officials for the excess amount. Officials have told Moscow it can have more but so far the Russians have not indicated whether they will take more than the

The Busy Bee Modulators, Circleville's newest CB club, won the trophy for having the most members at a CB Jamboree in Lancaster Sunday.

Among other awards and prizes won by the club or members were a plaque for winning the "tug of war," the $100 money hat won by Sharon Bowling, an AM-SSB radio by Ruth Harmon, a ceramic prize won by Vern and Mary Harrison and 40 feet of antenna tower won by Paul Spencer.

The next meeting of the organization will be a picnic 1 p.m. July 11 at Tar Hollow Park.

amounts specified in the agreement. department said that stocks of U.S. feed grain on farms and in elevators on June 1 totaled 56.8 million tons, up 22 per cent from a year ago. That includes corn, oats, barley and sorghum grain.

The June 1 wheat inventory was nearly 18.1 million tons, up 55 per cent from a year ago. The increases reflect the record U.S. harvests last year. Soybean supplies on June 1 totaled 15 million tons, up 30 per cent from a year earlier.

Laurelville News

By CELESTA HOY
332-3251

The Laurelville High School alumni banquet was held on Saturday evening in the school gym. The steak dinner was served at 6:30 by the Women's Missionary of the Church of God with Rev. Delbert Ash giving the invocation. Mrs. Brenda Schwalbaugh McNichols, vice president, and Miss Donna Fetherolf were in charge of registering the members and their guests.

The 150 persons present were seated at beautifully decorated tables in keeping with the theme of the evening "Happy Birthday, U.S.A." White table covers with red and white borders were used with red, white and blue candles in crystal holders. Each person received a ball point pen, compliments of Jim and Clara Armstrong who owns and operates the R.R. Salvage store in Circleville.

Classes honored were 1926 — 50 years and 1951 — 25 years. Each member of the honored classes who was present received a red carnation from the organization. Present by special invitation were two teachers who taught the members of the 50-year class. They were Mrs. Ruth Wharton Heston and Loy J. Mosher. The former Miss Wharton taught French, history and home ec. Mosher was vice principal, and the coach of the boy's basketball team.

Members of the class had not seen their former teachers since their graduation. Mrs. Mosher & Mr. Heston also attended the banquet.

The class of 1951 also had two of their former teachers present. They were Miss Frances McClelland and Mrs. Winnie Armstrong Clark. Members of the class of 1926 who attended the banquet were Mrs. Corabelle Hutchinson Karsher, Mrs. Iva Watkins Stocker and Mrs. Minnie Flanigan Foltz of Columbus, Ray Kitchen of Dayton, Adam Julian of Rushville, and Mrs. Dora Smith Ross of Route 1, Laurelville.

The meeting was called to order by the president, Adam Julian. Other former teachers who responded to roll call were Mrs. Agnes Wiggins Woodward and Mrs. Ruth Notestone. Kitchen recalled some of the activities of his class and Frazier was spokesman for the class of 25 years.

Officers nominated for 1977 are Daniel Wingett, president; Robert

Butts, vice president; Mrs. Howard Egan, treasurer and Celesta Hoy, secretary.

Wingett was introduced and he named the following committees. Nominating committee: Mrs. Golda Paxton, Mrs. Gertrude Butts and Miss Evelyn Cox; table and decorating committee: Mr. and Mrs. Jim Armstrong, Mr. and Mrs. Don Edwards, Warren and Sherry White and Gary and Brenda McNichols.

The historian's report by Celesta Hoy closed the program. The entire group joined in singing "America" and "America The Beautiful", with Michael Bailey at the piano. Bailey also played throughout the evening. The date of the banquet is the third Saturday evening in June. It will be June 18, 1977.

On June 13 little Miss Jodelle Marie Moore, daughter of Tom and Carol Moore, of Circleville celebrated her first birthday at the home of her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert West of Laurelville, although her birthday was really June 11.

James Hid Out

STANTON, Mo. (AP) — During the 1870s, Jesse James and his gang used to hide out at the Meramec Caverns here.

A sign in the caverns observes: "Jesse James Crept Here."

No More Fun At Post Office

MENTOR, Ky. (AP) — The government has taken all the enjoyment out of going to the post office in Mentor, Ky. In fact, the government has taken not only the enjoyment, but also the post office from this small town 25 miles south of Cincinnati.

"There are no tobacco chewers on courthouse benches in this town," said Edna Gusney, "just us women who stop by the post office to gossip every morning. Don't know what's gonna happen to us now."

Mrs. Gusney, not one to give up the gossip just because the post office closed last Saturday, made a suggestion to the owner of a nearby convenience food store.

"Mary, you're just going to have to put up a big ol' umbrella out front here, serve tea and all us girls will get together just like we used to," she said.

The post office in Mentor was opened at about the time that the railroad came to town, but now the fourth-class post office is suffering the fate of eight others in the Cincinnati Postal District's Ohio-Kentucky-Indiana region which have been, or are scheduled to be shut down this summer.

Many of the 70 families who used the post office are not too happy about their new postal address: "California, Ky." They explain that there is a rivalry between the two towns and add that California is little more than a town of mobile homes.

Even their post office, located 2.5 miles from Mentor, is in a trailer.

Fay Corbin, one of the many elderly people who made the daily short walk from home to the post office to pick up the mail knows where the blame should be placed.

"Bureaucrats," the 85-year-old woman concluded simply.

She can recall when her father served as postmaster during the 1920s.

Then, her dad would hang bags of mail over the tracks and when the daily passenger trains came by, a shirt-sleeved man leaned out from the mail car to latch the pouch with a hook. "Sometimes, he missed," she recalled.

The government didn't miss the Mentor post office this time. By closing the office, about $12,000 a year will be saved, Cincinnati postal officials say. The post office generates only about $4,000 a year in revenue from stamp and money order sales, according to postal officials.

A rural carrier route will be more efficient, they add. Mrs. Gusney and her friends disagree.

"Most of us have been placed at the end of Wilbur Wagoner's (carrier) route," said Mrs. Gusney. "How can we gossip in the morning when we won't receive our mail 'til three or four in the afternoon."

Parades, Protests, Frisbee Fling Part Of 200th Hoopla

By DON McLEOD
Associated Press Writer

Only in America would they celebrate the national Bicentennial with a day-long protest rally and concert, the biggest fireworks, the longest parade and 200 people flinging Frisbees off a hill.

And that's only a small part of the program for this Fourth of July when the United States turns 200 years old. There's also greased pig chasing, bell ringing, pow wows, a 1,776-yard footrace and a 400,000-slice birthday cake.

Since there is no world's fair, like the one they had in 1876, and no national focus for the celebration, local folks across the land have come up with ideas of their own. Some must have the founding fathers giggling in their graves.

There will be properly solemn official ceremonies, of course, beginning with prayer services in Washington and other cities, and centering around a commemorative program in Philadelphia where the Declaration of Independence was signed on July 4, 1776.

The activities of national interest begin July 2, the 200th anniversary of the day the Continental Congress actually voted independence from Britain for the 13 American colonies.

President Ford will go to the National Archives that evening to view the Declaration and deliver a speech.

The festivities begin July 3 with the American Bicentennial Grand Parade down Washington's Constitution Avenue, led by Vice President and Mrs. Nelson A. Rockefeller. In the evening the President will attend an "Honor America" entertainment salute to America at the Kennedy Center.

Bicentennial Sunday will dawn on sunrise religious services at the Lincoln Memorial sponsored by the downtown churches of Washington. President Ford will begin his busy schedule by attending services at an area church.

From Washington, Ford will fly to Valley Forge, Pa., where he will join activities which include the encampment of 100 covered wagons which have crossed the country in the Bicentennial Wagon Train Pilgrimage. He also is expected to sign legislation making Valley Forge a national park. The President also will attend the National Bicentennial Program at Independence Hall in Philadelphia which will include a reading of the Declaration and the usual patriotic speeches.

Actor Charlton Heston is expected to be master of ceremonies and Frank Sinatra to sing the national anthem. Then one of the major parades of the day follows the ceremonies, running for six or seven hours.

In midafternoon Ford will have moved on to New York where he will view more than 200 sailing vessels, including nearly all of the world's few remaining tall-masted ships, parading up the Hudson River.

In Boston, first city of the Revolution, they'll be doing it the way they have every year since 1782 with a parade, flag raising and reading of the Declaration.

Meanwhile, back in Washington, a program of music, speeches and fireworks will run from daybreak to midnight on the capital's Mall area, featuring big name entertainers and politicians.

At 8 a.m., following the sunrise service, there will be a second interfaith religious program, this one at the Jefferson Memorial.

Then the Peoples Bicentennial Commission, a leftist group which has been protesting official plans for celebrating the occasion, will begin a march in support of "a Declaration of Independence from Big Business."

The PBC will follow its march with a rally on the Mall featuring Jane Fonda and Dr. Benjamin Spock. But this will shortly evolve into an all-day celebrity appearance and entertainment extravaganza spotlighting singers Don McLean, Peter Yaro of the former Peter, Paul and Mary group, John Stewart, formerly of the Kingston Trio, and various rock performers.

At the same time, on another quarter of the Mall, the annual Festival of America folklife will be in full swing to the tune of fiddle music and tom toms.

And sometime during the day, the Centennial Safe, a sort of time capsule sealed in 1876, will be opened at the Capitol. Congress also planned to serve punch and cookies to the public during the afternoon on the East Front steps of the Capitol.

At 2 p.m., supposedly the exact moment the Liberty Bell in Philadelphia announced the Declaration of Independence, the bell will be tolled again and answered by simultaneous ringing of bells all across America.

Also going on across America will be local celebrations including that 1,776-yard race at a high school in Alexandria, Va., George Washington's home town.

Up in Sitka, Alaska, they'll have their own July 4th parade along with the tree-felling, topping, climbing, log rolling, axe throwing championships and square dancing.

And in Seward, Alaska, the 4th will be celebrated with a foot race 3,000 feet up Shale Mountain, around a flag pole on the top and back to town.

Across the continent they'll be raising Liberty poles in Milford, Conn., and Derry, N.H., where celebrants also will roast an ox.

In Ada, Okla., they'll chase greased pigs at the all-day picnic. There's a hog-calling contest in New Philadelphia, Ohio, a horse race down Main Street in Lexington, Ky., and a Pony Express ride from Sacramento, Calif., to the Nevada state line.

Biloxi, Miss., will have hot air balloon races and Hanibal, Mo., its Mark Twain Days, with raft races, fence painting and frog jumping. And Cairo, Ga., will hold the Grady County Marbles competition.

New Orleans, of course, will feature jazz all day on the 4th after a Mardi Gras-style parade which begins on the 3rd and ends up after midnight in the Superdome.

Not to be outdone by the mainlanders, American Samoa will include copra-cutting and spear-chucking contests with the usual parades and speeches.

None Of Above Is Libertarian Pick

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — "None of the above is acceptable," would be an option for voters to mark on election ballots if one minor party candidate for vice president has his way.

David Bergland, a 40-year-old Newport Beach, Calif., lawyer, is running second on a ticket with Roger L. McBride, the presidential candidate of the decidedly unconventional Libertarian party.

"Our major premise is that traditional politics is the enemy," Bergland said in an interview during an initial campaign swing through Ohio. "It has created a monster."

Bergland attempted unsuccessfully in a referendum drive to get a box on the California ballot for "none of the above" as a voter preference.

"It doesn't matter who wins, it's going to mean the same old thing," he says.

Who are the Libertarians and what do they want?

Simply stated, the party believes government is at its best when it governs least, or almost not at all.

The Libertarian credo calls for a fierce adherence to individual liberties, a free enterprise system not hampered by government regulation, neoisolationism in foreign affairs and lifting of criminal penalties for "victimless crimes," such as prostitution. Many essential government services would be continued on a volunteer basis, the party believes.

Bergland claims the party's 10,000 or so members include refugees from the old "New Left," as well as from conservative movements.

But several party tenets appear to be conservative philosophy taken to its ultimate conclusion—particularly the antibureaucracy and freedom of the individual emphasis. Indeed, many members admit they were active in the 1964 presidential campaign of Barry Goldwater.

But Goldwater no longer fills the bill, Bergland says.

"There are many people of a libertarian orientation who think (Ronald) Reagan is the best of a bad lot," Bergland adds. He claims the former California governor's positions on foreign affairs—"he's a tremendous hawk"—and individual liberties are unacceptable.

Still Bergland concedes, the party will probably pick up some of his supporters if Regan fails to win the Republican nomination.

In Ohio, Bergland expects an "uphill battle" for recognition and an understanding of the Libertarian viewpoint.

"The political climate here is that we have a sort of a conservative-moderate milieu," he says. "People basically don't know about us."

In 1974, Ohioans gave Kathleen G. Harroff, Libertarian candidate for the U.S. Senate, 76,882 votes, more than any other minor party candidate.

The Libertarians and other fringe parties must still be validated by the secretary of state's office, but party officials says they have well over the required 5,000 signatures.

Cuyahoga Judge On Appellate Bench

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Common Pleas Judge Saul G. Stillman of Cuyahoga County has been elevated to Ohio's 8th District State Court of Appeals by Gov. James A. Rhodes.

The governor announced Wednesday he was appointing Stillman to succeed Judge John M. Manos, who resigned from the state appellate bench April 8 to accept a federal court assignment.

Imagination Turns Run-Down Section Into Shopping Area

ROCKFORD, Mich. (AP) — Imagination turned a run-down area of this small western Michigan town into a shopping area with enough allure that its daily visitors often outnumber Rockford's residents.

The 34 small shops and restaurants of Squires Street Square are now pumping at least $500,000 in the town's economy each year.

"Almost any town with old buildings could do this. It just takes a lot of planning," said Dorothy Anglin, a candle shop owner who heads the Square's merchants' association.

The Square's theme is historic. Buildings look much as they did 75 or 100 years ago. From the outside, "There hasn't been that much change except maybe for a fresh coat of paint," Mrs. Anglin noted.

Inside, the emphasis is upon hand-crafts, antiques and food. The shops once held a variety of businesses, including a livery stable, barn, a feed mill, a railroad caboose and even a coffin maker.

Many of the proprietors like Mrs. Anglin converted a hobby into an occupation. She was staffing coordinator at a Grand Rapids hospital until about three years ago.

A visit to one of the Square's first businesses spurred her decision to open a candle shop. "I'd been making candles as a hobby for a good many years," she said.

The area's pace is leisurely. Most shops are open only six hours daily.

John Reed, secretary treasurer for the local Chamber of Commerce, described the Square's business as "mostly Mom and Pop operations" but estimated they still gross at least $500,000 annually.

Reed, who owns a gift shop outside the Square area, said eight new businesses have opened in the past six months. Over half of them are run by nonresidents, he said.

The Square started in 1970 when two Rockford brothers, Mike and Tim Farmer, fixed up the burned out and condemned Dykstra feed elevator. As a hobby, the Farmers and their wives started selling homemade doughnuts and cider squeezed from a century-old press.

The Farmers bought other property nearby until they owned eight parcels. Today, Mike Farmer is landlord for many of the Square's shops.

But, he says:

"We have sustained heavy losses from our personal funds because it was hard to get help from a bank." No government funds were used.

Still, the foundry supply firm president said: "Squire Street can stand on its own now." He noted some shop owners are starting to buy their stores from him.

Dave Hutchins, a Rockford banker and president of Chamber of Commerce, said the Square is "going through growing pains" but "they bring in an awful lot of traffic."

Reed claimed the Square averages 3,000 visitors daily from May through October. Rockford, about 30 miles from Grand Rapids, has a population of about 2,800, he said.

Cincy Police Chief Trial Sent To Jury

CINCINNATI (AP) — The case against suspended Cincinnati Police Chief Carl Goodin and two other police officers is scheduled to go to the jury today after the final day of testimony included two city officials questioning the chief's honesty.

The Hamilton County Common Pleas Court jury Wednesday heard Deputy City Manager Henry Sandman and Safety Director Richard Castellini both question the honesty and truthfulness of Goodin, on trial for perjury and tampering with evidence.

Goodin was the focal point during the final day of often interrupted testimony in the trial, which is in its second week. The police chief is accused along with Lt. Richard Beyer, charged with perjury and tampering with evidence, and James Simon, accused of perjury.

All three men were indicted by a special grand jury last December. Sandman, under questioning by Prosecutor Simon Leis, said he had considered the suspended police chief to be a good man and a good administrator "until late November of last year."

At that point in the testimony, there was an objection by Goodin's attorneys and a 1½ hour conference was held in Judge Gilbert Bettman's chambers.

After the conference, Leis again asked Sandman's opinion after December 1975 of Goodin's "truth and veracity."

"I'm sorry to say, but it's bad," Sandman said.

Castellini answered Leis' question about the suspended chief's honesty and truthfulness by saying, "I'm sorry to say, it's poor."

Both men disagreed with an recollection by Goodin of a breakfast meeting in which Castellini, Sandman and the police chief took part.

Both Sandman and Castellini recalled that Goodin had bristled at a suggestion that the vice squad should be transferred.

They both said that they recalled Goodin saying that if the transfers were made, they would have to suspend him first.

Goodin earlier denied making such a statement.

OSU Orientation For Parents, Students

AT BOOKS IN THE CHILDREN'S LIBRARY

Want to perk up your summer reading with something different? Dash down to the Children's Room and take a look at our new titles.

We have three new picture books for young children. In "The Lives of My Cat Alfred" you will join a young boy as he imagines the previous eight lives of his remarkable pet cat.

"The Gondolier of Venice" is designed as a picture book for young children, but older boys and girls will appreciate it too. In this tale Gregory the Mouse discovers an ingenious plan for keeping Venice from sinking. The illustrations include accurate replicas of Venetian landmarks.

"I Hate to Take a Bath" begins by listing some reasons for avoiding bath time, but ends by describing so many fun aspects of bathing that even nonbelievers may be converted and actually want to participate in this nightly ritual.

Beginning readers will find mystery and adventure in "Jimmy and Joe See a Monster," in which two boys explore a cave and find real Indian artifacts. Another new easy-to-read book is "Sir Toby Jingle's Beastly Journey." When Sir Toby grows too old and decrepit to do physical battle with giants, ogres, and wild beasts, he out-smarts them in an amusing manner.

Just in for fourth grade and up is "June the Tiger." Soon after Mrs. Pinckney adopts June the Tiger, a mangy dog, her house is attacked by a large bear. Read the book and see what happens when June decides to help catch the bear!

Both young and old will get a chuckle from "The Monster Riddle Book", which is crammed full of questions such as "What do witches put on their hair?" (Answer: "Scare spray.") The colorful and ridiculous illustrations catch this book's mood perfectly.

Stop by and see our other new books for yourself. If you aren't a regular browser in the Children's Room, you may be pleasantly surprised by the selection!

KIWANIS SPEAKER — John Dowler (left), assistant director of the Bloom Carroll High School Marching Band, was the guest speaker at Circleville Kiwanis Club meeting Tuesday. He was introduced by the program chairman, Eugene Dowler (right), his father. Dowler, who directs the flag corps and gun bearers of the band, explained how a band is prepared for competition. Special guests included Frank Hudson, a member of Ashville Club, Stephanie Painter, daughter of Kiwanian Doyle Painter, prospective member, Don Connelly and his wife, Brenda, and the wives of Kiwanis members. Norman Vinyard, co-chairman of the Kiwanis sponsored rodeo July 1, reported on that event. Last U.S. Advisers Leave Chinese Isles

WASHINGTON (AP) — The last U.S. military advisers on Quemoy and Matsu, the two Nationalist Chinese islands near mainland China, are being removed, a State Department official says.

The official said the step was part of a general reduction of U.S. military personnel overseas. He also said it was tied to the Shanghai communique issued at the end of then-President Richard M. Nixon's 1972 visit to mainland China.

That mutual declaration included a statement that the United States would cut its military activity in the Far East as part of the U.S. effort to improve relations with the mainland.

The decision to remove the last military advisers could add fuel to Ronald Reagan's claim that the Ford administration is giving up Taiwan for improved relations with Peking. There are a total of five or six American advisers on the islands, according to U.S. officials.

The two islands lie about 20 miles from the mainland and approximately 100 miles from Taiwan. Since 1949 when the Chinese Communists won the civil war and the losing forces of Chiang Kai-shek fled to Taiwan and Quemoy and Matsu, the two heavily fortified islands have been a symbol of Nationalist Chinese resistance to the mainland.

The official, who asked that his name not be used, said the removal of the advisers was "in the works" as part of a "worldwide, routine reduction in military activity." He did not specify any timetable.

The official noted that the 1972 Shanghai communique dealt with the eventual decrease of U.S. military activity in the Far East. He said the U.S. force on Taiwan had been reduced from 10,000 in 1972 to about 2,000 troops now there.

A ranking House member reported a month ago that he was told "there is a movement afoot" in the State Department to end U.S. relations with Taiwan after the November election and establish full diplomatic relations with Peking.

Rep. Clement J. Zablocki, D-Wis., in line to become chairman of the House International Relations Committee next year, said he learned of the move from Taiwanese diplomats. The State Department sidestepped the issue at the time and said only that President Ford has reaffirmed U.S. determination to normalize relations with Peking.

The U.S. position has been that any attack against the two islands would be viewed as an attack on Taiwan itself.

Bicentennial Bonds Offered By Citizens Bank

The Citizens Bank of Ashville will, on request, issue Bicentennial-design Series E Savings Bonds dated July 4 to over-the-counter customers between July 1 and July 31.

This special commemoration of our nation's 200th birthday will have no effect on the terms and conditions effective on the Bonds.

In announcing this special opportunity, Eugene Wilson, Executive Vice President, of the bank said — "We are extremely pleased to be able to offer everyone in this area a chance to make the purchase of Savings Bonds a truly Bicentennial event. Those Bonds bearing the July 4 date will make perfect souvenirs of our birthday celebration that everyone will want to have and keep for many years to come."

Denominations of the Bicentennial-design Series E Savings Bond range from $25 to $1,000, with purchase prices of $18.75 to $750. They draw six per cent interest when held to a five-year maturity (4½ the first year), and carry an automatic 10-year extension of interest beyond maturity.

Welfare Gardens Set Aside In Ohio

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Ten acres of Summit County have been set aside for welfare recipients whose general relief payments recently have been discontinued. County commissioners hope the land will be used for food gardens.

The commissioners discontinued the payments last month to about 4,000 persons because of lack of funds. A county judge upheld the decision over a challenge by a group seeking to continue the payments.

The land being offered by the county is around the former county home for the poor.

"I'll even get out and help them farm it," said commissioner Don M. Stephens. "My own personal garden grows more than I can use. I'll make sure it goes to somebody."

Most of the 440 acres of the county home land is leased to farmers, is used for experimental farming or is wooded.

One of the representatives of the group that fought the halt in financial aid, Dale Miller, said he was sure he could "get some assistance in plowing the land, turning the soil and planting the seed."

"Our greatest need will be for seeds and plants," Miller said, keeping in mind the latest of the season for starting a garden from scratch.

"The biggest problem with these people," Miller added, "is that they are primarily city folks."

hectic and at times fearsome chase late Wednesday before being felled with a tranquilizer gun and dying in a semirural area east of Zanesville.

The tiger, a 400-pound Bengal which had held forth as mascot of the Tigers athletic teams at Muskingum Area Technical School since 1970, touched off a flurry of mutual terror between itself and onlookers, deputies said, when it bolted from its cage and headed toward a residential area shortly after 5 p.m.

At one point, Deputy Phil Hammer said the declawed tiger, named Monada, sprung to his chest, knocked him down, and ripped away his shirt before another officer fired into the air with his service revolver to frighten it away. Hammer was not injured.

Monada finally was cornered in the residential area after residents poured from their homes to watch, and add to, the excitement.

Hammer, and two other deputies, James Brown and Bill Roberts, said numerous calls were made until a Carter Says . . .

Dakota Democrats select 13 delegates on Friday.

Carter aides said that in the New York fund raisers, Carter raised about $175,000. Two fundraising events in Boston on Tuesday brought in about $60,000 they said.

Carter campaign treasurer Robert Lipshutz said last week the campaign was about $600,000 in debt.

The Republican delegate tally stands at 1,068 for Ford and 928 for Reagan, an 80-delegate lead for the President with 151 delegates uncommitted and 161 yet to be chosen.

After four days at home in California, Reagan flies to Mississippi today where there are 30 uncommitted GOP national convention delegates, the largest remaining uncommitted bloc. Ford was working in Washington today and has no political journeys scheduled for this weekend.

Republican state conventions will be held Friday and Saturday in four states. Sixty-three Republicans will be selected — 18 in Minnesota, 20 in Montana, 21 in New Mexico and 4 in Idaho.

Ford is looking for a sweep in Minnesota, but a rules change is needed to make it possible. Reagan backers want to take all 20 Montana delegates, but Ford's supporters are holding out for a 13-7 split.

Ford campaigners concede the President is unlikely to win even a single delegate in New Mexico. The four Idaho delegates are also likely to go to Reagan.

Meanwhile, the Federal Election Commission determined Wednesday that nine candidates will get no more federal matching money except to pay campaign debts incurred before they bowed out of the nomination races.

The group includes Rep. Morris Udall, Sens. Henry Jackson and Frank Church, and Gov. George Wallace, four of the last five major Carter chasers.

The only candidates still eligible for matching funds are Carter, President Ford, Ronald Reagan and California Gov. Edmund Brown Jr.

FBI Agents Mum With Lawyers

WASHINGTON (AP) — FBI agents under investigation for allegedly committing burglaries have been ordered not to talk to their lawyers about their case until the lawyers are cleared to receive secret government information.

Department sources have confirmed that the civil rights division is investigating at least 20 FBI agents involved in intelligence-gathering burglaries during the past five years. The probe involves possible illegal violations of the civil rights of American citizens.

The FBI agents were given the instructions about their lawyers in a teletyped message from FBI headquarters last Friday, according to Jack B. Solerwitz, an attorney representing some of the FBI men.

The restriction suggests that the Justice Department probe involves break-ins which the FBI considered sensitive national security matters.

"My clients have been told they are the targets of an investigation of surreptitious entries," Solerwitz said in an interview Wednesday.

He declined to say how many of the agents he represents or to identify them. But some are assigned to the FBI's New York office, he said.

Solerwitz said department investigators telephoned the FBI men at their homes during the weekend of June 12 to inform them they were under investigation and that they would be advised of their right of keep silent and to retain an attorney.

A teletyped message from FBI headquarters June 16 advised the agents to hire private lawyers, Solerwitz said.

"The Justice Department has made it clear to these agents that they will not be provided counsel" by the government, he said. Under current policy, the department refuses to provide lawyers to defend employees in criminal investigations.

Solerwitz is representing the agents for free in his capacity as attorney for the Federal Criminal Investigators Association.

The FBI message June 18 instructed the agents not to disclose details of the case until their attorneys get security clearances. Solerwitz said he doesn't know how long it will take to get the clearance. Such clearances normally are processed through the FBI and the department.

Solerwitz said he has concluded from conversations with the chief prosecutor that the investigation will reach into the supervisory ranks of the FBI.

"I have no doubt their investigation would not terminate with these agents," he said. "Any prosecutor would go higher."

It could not be determined which or how many organizations or individuals may have been burglarized by the FBI during the past years.

The five-year period is significant because the statute of limitations precludes federal prosecutions for civil rights offenses more than five years old.

The disclosure that break-ins were conducted since 1971 contradicts the FBI's insistence that burglaries against domestic targets ended in 1966.

Engineer Develops Miracle Magnet

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — A University of Dayton engineer has developed a magnet so powerful it may be used in miniature which means electric motors soon may be reduced in size by half or more.

The magnet, 100 times more powerful than those in use, has other applications for making solar energy feasible, driving heart pumps in humans and holding false teeth in place.

Karl Strnat, engineering professor at the University of Dayton, says his device "has the potential of doing for motors what transistors did for electronics."

His research on rare earth metals produced the new magnet, so powerful it is usable in miniature form. If used with a ball bearing suspended between two of the new devices, a form of energy nearing the elusive perpetual motion becomes possible.

Friction has been the stumbling block for researchers seeking that form of energy throughout history. The miniature magnets, fashioned into rings and positioned so they repel one another, create an energy field that will suspend a ball bearing in air, effectually erasing the effects of friction.

A gathering of scientists from around the world met at the university earlier this month and discussed applications for Strnat's breakthrough.

"For the first time it is possible to store energy on a fly wheel and release it when needed," Ajit Sabnash of Sperry Flight Systems, Phoenix, Ariz., told the gathering.

In one common application, a fly wheel helps to convert an automobile engine's energy into usable form.

"You can drive to the airport, take a plane, come back two days later and the fly wheel on your car would still be spinning. All that time the fly wheel would be storing energy to drive the car. A bus is already operating on this principle in Switzerland," Sabnash added.

Medical uses for the tiny magnets are being tested worldwide. Especially interesting is research at Boston's Children's Hospital, where a young cow is living with a pancake-size miniature motor driving a pump pushing blood through her body. Use in humans is three to five years away, researchers say.

Strnat, an Austrian-born scientist, first developed his magnet while doing research at Wright Patterson Air Force Base.

Roger Shelpman, 22, 192 Parklawn Dr., has been charged with failure to pay, a petit theft violation, by Circleville Police.

According to the report, Shelpman ordered $6 worth of gasoline and a quart of oil from Dan Hill, an attendant at Hill Union 76 station, 226 Lancaster Pike, 7:35 a.m. Wednesday.

Hill told Ptl. Joe Stevenson and Ptl. Howard Fletcher that Shelpman apparently left his credit card and cash at his home. The officers were summoned about 30 minutes after the incident when Shelpman failed to return to pay for the gas and oil.

Police said similar charges against Shelpman are on file in Ashville.

Two bicycles were stolen from in front of the Pickaway County Family YMCA Building Wednesday between 7 and 8 p.m.

The bikes are a 10-speed Citoth valued at $150 owned by Steve Jolliffe, 545 Lawnwood Court, and a 10-speed Huffy valued at $75 owned by Greg Miller, 228 Cedar Heights Road.

Jack Ford Says Nixon Misled Dad

NEW YORK (AP) — Jack Ford says former President Richard Nixon took advantage of many Americans, including himself and his father, the President.

Young Ford, 23, also replied with a flat "no" when asked during an interview whether Nixon has a future in the Republican party.

Part of the segment for the CBS program "June Magazine," telecast today, was filmed while the President's son was being interviewed by a Rolling Stone magazine writer aboard a campaign bus in California.

Asked if Nixon is still on the minds of Republicans, young Ford replied:

"A lot of people just feel like they got taken advantage of, screwed over, quite frankly. I'm one of those people. I worked for Richard Nixon in '72. I voted for Richard Nixon; I thought he was the best candidate."

"Richard Nixon didn't treat my father the way my father treated him."

Ford said his father "feels if a guy can look him in the eye and say, 'I am not a crook, I'm an honest man,' he's going to take that man at his word...."

"He looked my father in the eye and said, 'Jerry, I'm innocent, all this is fabrication of the press, I need your help to try to put an end to it.'"

Ford conceded he had not actually heard such a statement by Nixon and was "taking liberties."

"But that's the type of thing that Richard Nixon did to the whole country because he just didn't tell the truth," he said.

"Coxey's Army" led in 1894 by Jacob S. Coxey of Massillon, Ohio was made up of unemployed persons who marched to Washington to urge economic relief through government construction work. Coxey later became mayor of Massillon.

"If thing's go right, we hope to have it contained by 6 p.m.," said Jim Turner, spokesman for the California Division of Forestry, at a predawn news briefing.

As he spoke, residents continued to spray water on their homes and prayed that a fresh easterly wind would continue. Fire officials said they were confident the town would be spared if the wind held.

Other big wildfires were reported elsewhere in California.

In Ventura County north of Los Angeles, firemen fought to contain a 1,710-acre brush fire as it edged toward an exclusive residential area. A spokesman for the county fire department said, at about midnight, "With a little bit of luck with winds, we'll have it completely contained by morning, with full control by Thursday afternoon."

At Val Verde, about 40 miles north of Los Angeles, a fire of about 250 acres was reported "contained and completely under control" by midnight.

In Tehama County, where hundreds of acres of grazing land burned last week, firemen with the help of two aerial tankers stopped a 300-acre blaze in a recreational subdivision called Rancho Tehama.

About 75 fire fighters contained a 300-acre grassland fire Wednesday night 20 miles east of Clear Lake, about 185 miles northeast of San Francisco.

At Plymouth, Turner said the fire, fanned by 50 mile-an-hour winds from the north, came within about four miles of this Amador County community of about 600. Then it shifted direction.

It destroyed "four or five homes" and burned a swath up to five miles wide and 11 miles long, blackening oaks, brush and grazing land, Turner said.

Turner said the only known injuries were to two volunteers who were treated at a hospital for smoke inhalation and released.

He added it would be some time before a full assessment of damage would be possible.

The fire broke out Wednesday afternoon in several spots "which kind of all got together" in winds of 20 to 25 miles an hour, said Sandi Shumard, a forestry division spokeswoman.

Turner, when asked if several apparent spots of origin meant arson, replied, "I have to say the cause is under investigation."

The blaze started near Shingle Springs, an El Dorado County town of several hundred about 12 miles from Plymouth.

THEY'LL MARRY AGAIN — Jewell Bagley, 87, of Placerville, Calif., and Mae Harris, 79, of Kirkland, Wash., will marry for the second time at Seattle, Wash. They called it quits in 1940 after 26 years of marriage. Their children and loneliness have brought them together again.

Nearly 1,400 Attend Buckeye Boys State

Almost 1400 boys, all high school juniors, were on hand when the annual Ohio American Legion school in self-government and politics opened on June 19 with a colorful salute to the nation's Bicentennial. Scores of local American Legion Posts were represented by uniformed members carrying their flags and banners.

The boys, divided into two political parties and housed in dormitories on the West Green, found themselves citizens of 27 named cities in nine named counties. Each was provided with a digest of Ohio Government to study, plus a law library and the help of numerous adult counselors.

Fast-moving political campaigns were followed by the first computerized voting in Boys State history. The new governor was inaugurated June 22, by Ohio Chief Justice C. William O'Neill, who himself was a Boys State counselor in the early days of the Program. This event began the brief tenure of all the young officials in their respective state, county, and city offices, a full range of courts, and such other activities as a state highway patrol and a national guard.

This year again saw the use of computerized voting, as well as the conventional paper ballot in the Primary and General Elections.

Buckeye Boys State, launched by the Ohio Legion in 1936, has for years been the largest of the Boys States held in most of the 50 states. It is made possible by local financial aid of service clubs, civic, school, unions, business, and other groups.

Skillet Champ Misses Barn

MACKSBURG, Iowa (AP) — Connie Schutz's reign as Iowa's champion skillet trower is in jeopardy. She's been practicing a lot and still can't hit the broad side of a barn.

Mrs. Schutz, 31, competes for the national title against other state champs here Saturday.

"I've been practicing," Mrs. Schutz said from her farm home near here Wednesday. "The last week or so I've been off. I've been doing a lot of hoeing. I've got a softball team, and I've got more muscles than I used to have. I keep overshooting the target."

The target is a dummy with a basketball head.

Contestants, throwing underhand, stand 30 feet away and try to knock the dummy's block off. A tumbled head is worth five points, a body hit, one point.

Throwers who tumble the head stand back another 10 feet and get another three throws, using a 10-inch cast steel skillet weighing three to four pounds.

"The more you hit, the more you stand back until somebody misses," said Mrs. Schutz, the mother of four children.

"It's not easy, and those people who think they're athletically inclined — well, I'd like to see them try this. I've seen big 250-pound men try and couldn't do it."

In her first state contest a year ago, Mrs. Schutz didn't beat anybody. But last May she took the women's state title, then lost to the men's champion for the right to compete in the national event.

"I don't remember his name. It's Boyle. He's from Baxter. He said he couldn't make it to the national, so I'll represent Iowa."

Grich's Homer Stops Red Sox

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

Bobby Grich isn't Baltimore's designated hitter, but you'll have to forgive Jim Palmer if he doesn't buy that.

It seems that when Palmer is pitching, Grich is usually doing something useful with his bat.

Last year, the Baltimore second baseman hit home runs to provide Palmer with a pair of 1-0 triumphs. Wednesday night he was back at it, slamming a two-run homer with two out in the bottom of the 10th inning, transforming Palmer from loser to winner with one swing and lifting the Orioles to a 3-2 victory over the Boston Red Sox.

In other American League action, the Cleveland Indians topped the New York Yankees 4-1, the Texas Rangers downed the Kansas City Royals 7-5, the Oakland A's trimmed the California Angels 8-2, the Chicago White Sox won a pair from the Minnesota Twins 4-3 and 9-5 and the Milwaukee Brewers outslugged the Detroit Tigers 9-5.

Baltimore's sudden rally — Tony Muser's two-out single preceded Grich's first-pitch homer off Jim Willoughby — gave the third-place Orioles their eighth triumph in nine games, pulled them within seven games of first place and made Palmer the first nine-game winner in the AL. Jim Rice hit solo homers for both Boston runs.

Indians 4, Yanks 1
Don Hood checked New York on six hits over the first eight innings while ex-Yankee Charlie Spikes drove in a pair of runs with a fourth-inning single off Ken Holtzman. The Indians scored twice in the first inning before Holtzman could retire a batter. Rick Manning led off with a single, Larvell Blanks tripled and George Hendrick singled.

Rangers 7, Royals 5
Texas pulled within three games of Kansas City in the AL West behind Steve Foucault's clutch relief pitching and Toby Harrah's three-run homer in the opening inning. The Rangers broke a 5-5 tie in the sixth when Mike Hargrove singled, took third on Harrah's single and scored on Dennis Leonard's wild pitch.

A's 8, Angels 2
Bert Campaneris lashed four straight singles and pitcher Mike Norris gained his first victory since early last season as Oakland made it six straight over California this season and nine in a row over a two-year span. Sal Bando slammed a two-run homer off Andy Hassler, 0-5, who was saddled with his 16th successive loss, three short of the American League record.

White Sox 4-9, Twins 3-5
Jorge Orta slammed a decisive triple in the first game and added a two-run homer in the nightcap. In the opener, Bart Johnson won his first game in exactly a month with relief help from Terry Forster. Jack Brohamer, who homered in the opener, doubled two runs across in the nightcap.

Brewers 9, Tigers 5
George Scott, miffed at being dropped from fourth to sixth in the batting order, collected his seventh home run and two singles and drove in two runs to spark Milwaukee over Detroit. Sixto Lezcano capped a three-run fourth inning with a two-run double and Robin Yount knocked in two runs with two singles as the Brewers broke a four-game losing streak.

Golfer Lee Elder withdrew from the Florida Citrus Open because of a wrist injury, then went home and strained his back lifting a case.

Cincinnati's Reds drew the top two National League crowds at home in April. The two-game total was 106,339 paid fans.

Michigan Hurler Signs Padre Pact

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Former Eastern Michigan University left-handed pitcher Bob Owchinko left Wednesday for Amarillo, Tex., and the minors after signing as the No.1 college baseball draft choice of the San Diego Padres.

Owchinko pitched complete game victories against Maine and Arizona State in the recent College World Series at Omaha, Neb. He wound up with a 14-3 season record.

"I'm a total pitcher," said Owchinko. "I want to be on the big club as soon as possible and for sure next year."

But he said he wasn't disappointed to start his professional career on San Diego's Class AA farm club instead of the Class AAA team in Hawaii.

Turf Champion To Be Retired, Syndicated

TORONTO (AP) — Snow Knight, winner of the Canadian International Championship last year and North American turf horse of the year, will be retired and may be syndicated for breeding, Joe Thomas, vicepresident of Winfields Farm, announced Wednesday.

Snow Knight, who defeated some of the best grass horses in the world in the 1975 Canadian International at Toronto's Woodbine Race Track, was being prepared for racing in the United States this year when he developed suspensory trouble.

Mike Marshall Switches Uniforms

ATLANTA (AP) — "We're after Cincinnati and when you go after the Reds you have to go for the best in the game," said Atlanta Braves General Manager John Alevizos, explaining his newest acquisition, reliever Mike Marshall.

"Marshall was my prime objective," Alevizos said Wednesday night, shortly after obtaining the 33-year-old right-hander from the Los Angeles Dodgers. "I consider him one of the premier relievers in baseball."

The Braves also sold relief pitcher Elias Sosa and infielder Lee Lacy to the Dodgers.

Marshall, a veteran of nine big league seasons and winner of the 1974 Cy Young Award when he pitched in 106 games for the Dodgers — winning 15 games and losing 12 with an earned run average of 2.42 — came to the Braves in a straight waiver deal, not a trade, which cast Atlanta $20,000, Alevizos said.

"I spoke to Mike in Houston and the first thing he asked me was, 'Where are you tomorrow?'" I told him we're in Atlanta and he said, 'I'll be there.'

"I told him, 'With that kind of spirit, I'll meet you at the airport.' If I'd have known he was that kind of guy, I'd have doubled my efforts to get him," Alevizos added.

Marshall, contacted in Houston where the Dodgers were playing the Astros, said: "A trade is something that should be accepted by any player. Players and fans should accept the fact that players are sold and traded with little concern for the players' wishes ... but that is the owners' prerogative.

"But I don't think a player should be blamed for trying to shape his own destiny," Marshall continued. "That's an aspect of free enterprise."

"There is nothing physically wrong with me and hopefully I can get all the work I want there," he said.

Dodgers Manager Walt Alston said Marshall indicated no hard feelings when told of the trade.

"I never had any problems with Mike," Alston said. "He has always given 100 per cent. I used him when I had to and I didn't use him when I didn't need to, just like any other player. I feel he can still pitch."

"We gave up a lot, but we got a lot," said Atlanta Manager Dave Bristol, whose club is virtually brand new from one that finished 40½ games behind the Reds last season.

Atlanta is currently 30-37 after winning seven of its last eight games and is 11½ games behind Cincinnati in the National League West.

Marshall was 4-3 this season in 30 appearances. He had eight saves and a 4.45 ERA but had been used sparingly of late with the emergence of Charlie Hough in the Los Angeles bullpen.

Sosa was 4-4 in 35 1-3 innings and his ERA was 5.40. Lacy was hitting .272 with three home runs and 20 runs batted in.

Morgan On Bench Worries Many

CINCINNATI (AP) — Joe Morgan has found himself on the bench more often than usual this season, and there's some question who's more upset—Morgan or his teammates.

"I can't sit still on the bench," said the 1975 Most Valuable Player who has been fighting injuries much of the season. "If I sit I get involved in the game. I gotta yell and the guys get mad."

Morgan has been in and out of the lineup since mid-May, when New York Mets shortstop Bud Harrelson accidentally kneed him in the head at second base during a stolen base attempt. Morgan said he had to twist his body unnaturally on the play, causing a strained muscle in his back.

"I can do everything except swing the bat well," he said. "If it were September, I'd play every day. Or if we didn't have Doug Flynn, I'd play. But he's getting three hits every day."

Flynn, a reserve infielder, is hitting over .300, while seeing much more action than last year, when he batted .268 as a rookie.

Morgan, who currently leads the All-Star voting, isn't happy on the bench but has a philosophical attitude about the injury.

"I don't get nagging injuries because I always loosen up," he said. "But I've been stealing bases for 12 years and this is the first time I've ever been hurt stealing a base."

"People don't realize that stealing a base is the most dangerous play in the game," he added.

So far, Morgan has missed 11 games entirely and served only as a pinch-hitter or pinch-runner in several others. He has about 90 less at-bats than Pete Rose, who hasn't missed a game in over two years.

Despite the time off, the 5-foot-7 superstar is having another fine year. He was batting .335 going into Tuesday's game, with 12 home runs, 48 RBI and 22 stolen bases. But it could be better.

"This year's been tough," he said. "Every time I get started, something happens. Everybody says we lost four out of six to Philadelphia, but I only started one of the games."

"Of course," he noted with a chuckle, "we lost that one too."

Diamond Mouth, Jack Have Talk

ATLANTA (AP) — In 10 years, Calvin Peete has gone from a poor black peddler plugging his jewelry with diamonds in his teeth to a pro golfer paired with Jack Nicklaus in the final round of the U.S. Open.

"Imagine that," said the 32-year-old Clewiston, Fla., resident, who never picked up a club until 10 years ago. "Jack and I don't live too far from each other, but I've never even spoken to him before. We don't travel in the same circles, you know."

"He made me feel at ease right away. He asked where I played and my personal history," said Peete, still sporting a gleaming smile. He said Nicklaus talked about country club courses. Peete talked about municipal layouts.

While Nicklaus was becoming a golf millionaire, Peete was learning the game by reading books and making a living peddling to migrant workers.

"I had nothin' to do one day and decided putting diamonds in my teeth would be good publicity for my line of work," he said. "I'd sell jewelry and stuff to the farm workers. It was a pretty good job. I'd make about $9,000 a year without working hard at it."

Peete's made more than $9,000 on the tour already this year.

"If he learns to play a little better, he'll be able to afford more diamonds in his teeth," said Nicklaus after Sunday's round. Bogies on the last three holes cost Peete a tie for 16th and a chance to qualify for the Masters. As it was, he finished with a 73 for 292, 12 over par.

Nicklaus watched Peete shoot a one-under-par 34 the first nine holes despite missing six greens. "The guy could get up and down from a trash can," Nicklaus said.

Peete said, "I think more of him (Nicklaus) now than before we played, and before I thought he was the best. He helped me, calmed me down. Outside of playing in the Open, playing with Nicklaus was the greatest thing that ever happened to me. I learned how far I am from being a super golfer."

Peete grew up as a farm picker and said his father, from Pahokee, Fla., and eight brothers and sisters are still migrant fruit and vegetable pickers.

Peete turned pro in 1971, playing in Florida's mini-tours. He earned his PGA card last winter, obtained a sponsor and qualified for the Open.

His wife, Chris, who also grew up as a farm picker and is now an eighth grade teacher in Belle Glade, Fla., said, "It's beautiful. He's made us proud."

Baseball To Return To Washington

WASHINGTON (AP) — Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn and Oakland A's owner Charles O. Finley will soon have their monumental hassle aired in the halls of Congress in addition to the courts and news media.

Finley shocked the sports world June 15 by holding a clearance sale of players who led the A's to three world championships. He handed pitcher Rollie Fingers and outfielder Joe Rudi to the Boston Red Sox for $1 million apiece, then dealt pitcher Vida Blue to the New York Yankees for $1.5 million.

Three days later, Kuhn pulled an even bigger shocker. He voided the deals, saying he was taking his lawsuit-producing action in the interest of preserving baseball's integrity.

The new House Select Committee on Professional Sports want the two combatants, along with owners George Steinbrenner of the Yanks and Tom Yawkey of the Red Sox, to come to Washington to defend their positions before the panel.

Some members want them here for a hearing next week. Chairman B.F. Sisk, D-Calif., said at the panel's first meeting Wednesday that an attempt will be made to schedule a hearing next week or, if that's not possible, the week of July 19.

The 13-member special House committee formed to investigate professional sports was created last month as a result of baseball's rebuff of Sisk's ad hoc panel, which has been seeking unsuccessfully to bring baseball back to the nation's capital since the end of the 1971 season, when the American League's Washington Senators moved to Texas.

Sisk said the committee would first investigate baseball and then move on to other sports.

Dayton Gridders On Steeler List

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The Pittsburgh Steelers of the National Football League have announced five new contract signings.

One of those who signed Wednesday was defensive lineman Bob Barber, a second-round choice last year who instead went to the World Football League.

Four 1976 draft picks also signed. They were offensive lineman Ron Coder of Penn State, fifth-round pick Rod Norton of Rice, seventh-round choice Barry Burton of Vanderbilt and 17th-round pick Kelvin Kirk of Dayton.

Thin Connors Eyes Wimbledon Crown

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Jimmy Connors, looking to regain the Wimbledon title he lost to Arthur Ashe last year, will need every ounce of energy his 5-foot-10 frame can provide to reach the 1976 final.

The way Jimmy sees it, this is a Wimbledon for big hitters.

After shedding 20 pounds since losing that 1975 final, Connors, at 155 pounds, is hardly in the same physical class as big men like Stan Smith and Roscoe Tanner.

But Jimmy hits the ball as hard as anyone, once his accurate — if not mercurial — serve is in play. That's due in part to Connors' patented two-fisted backhand and, perhaps even more, to his fierce determination.

After reaching the fourth round Wednesday — the first men's singles player to do so — with a 6-4, 6-0, 6-3 sweep of Ismael El Shafei of Egypt, Connors talked about this year's battle of the belters.

"So far, I've played only big hitters and that's the way it is through the whole tournament for me, if you look at the draw. I've got all the big hitters. Maybe it's good for me."

Then he added: "If I get to the final, I don't care who I play."

Connors, No. 2 seed behind Ashe, has a day off from the singles today while his opponents face off in third-round clashes.

Smith, of Sea Pines, S.C., the last seed at No. 16, could be Jimmy's next foe if he can dispose of Russia's Tamuraz Kakulia. Smith, the 1972 Wimbledon champ, is a lanky serve-and-volley artist.

Connors' next opponent will probably be Tanner, the lefthander from Lookout Mountain, Tenn., with the blistering serve, who is seeded seventh. Tanner's third-round foe is Carlos Kirmayr of Brazil.

Through the first three days of the two-week, $280,000 Wimbledon championship, the 14 men's singles seeds have won all their matches.

The main contenders for the women's title, vacated by 1975 champion Billie Jean King, who has retired from singles play, are Chris Evert of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., and Evonne Goolagong Cawley of Australia, the top two seeds.

Miss Evert won her secondround match Wednesday, routing Annette Coe of Britain 6-0, 6-0, and Mrs. Cawley also won through to the third round, defeating Sharon Walsh of San Rafael, Calif., 6-0, 7-5.

Virginia Wade of Britain, the third seed, had an easy 6-1, 6-0 win over Sue Mappin of Britain and Sue Barker, the other British seed listed seventh, beat Cecilia Martinez of San Francisco 6-4, 7-5.

Fourth-seeded Martina Navratilova, the 19-year-old Czech star who now lives in Beverly Hills, Calif., beat Belgium's Michel Gurdal 6-2, 6-1.

The other winning women seeds were San Francisco's Rosie Casals, ranked sixth, who beat Pat Bosgom of Seattle 6-2, 6-4; Kerry Reid of Australia, seeded eighth, who beat Pam Teegarden of Los Angeles 6-4, 1-6, 6-2, and Russia's Olga Morozova, the fifth seed, who beat Mary McLean of Fort Worth, Tex., 6-2, 6-0.

Phils' Allen Cracks Rare Smile While Beating Reds

By HOWARD SMITH
AP Sports Writer
Life among the Philadelphia Phillies is finally agreeing with Dick Allen. The Phils are running away with the National League East and the sometimes moody, controversial Allen is thoroughly enjoying the trip.

"This is really fun," said Allen after Philadelphia dumped Cincinnati 4-2 Wednesday night. "Whether I'm 0-for-12 or 0-for 1,200, I'm having fun. I'd pay to watch a playoff between these two teams ... and I can't stand to watch baseball."

Allen, in his second go-round with Philadelphia after turbulent stints with St. Louis, Los Angeles and the Chicago White Sox, has got his batting average up to .286 and is regaining the earlier form that made him one of the game's most feared sluggers.

He got the Phils' winning rally going in the ninth with a leadoff double and took third on an infield out. After a walk, pinch-hitter Bob Boone grounded to third and Pete Rose bounced his throw off first baseman Tony Perez' chest, allowing Allen to score the tie-breaking run. Dave Cash singled in an insurance run as Philadelphia beat the NL West leaders for the fifth time in seven games this season.

Elsewhere in the National League, Los Angeles blanked Houston 1-0, San Francisco beat San Diego twice, 7-6 and 8-7, Atlanta swept a doubleheader from Montreal, 5-2 and 3-0, the New York Mets edged St. Louis 5-4 and the Chicago Cubs shaded Pittsburgh 6-5.

Until Rose's throwing error in the ninth, the Phils and Reds had battled on even terms. Mike Schmidt clubbed his 20th homer of the year for a 1-0 Philly lead in the fourth, then Johnny Bench tied it for the Reds in the bottom of the inning with a sacrifice fly.

Cincinnati went on top 2-1 on George Foster's homer in the sixth, his 16th, then the Phils got even in the seventh when Allen got aboard on a forceout and came around on Jay Johnstone's double and a groundout. Ron Reed, 6-2 was the winner and Pedro Borbon, 0-1, the loser, both in relief.

Dodgers 1, Astros 0

Rick Rhoden, 6-0, fired a three-hitter to outduel J.R. Richard, 7-8, who allowed just two hits through eight innings. Rhoden scored the game's only run in the sixth when he singled, raced to third on Bill Buckner's double and scampered home on a sacrifice fly by Ted Sizemore.

Giants 7-8, Padres 6-7

Newly-acquired Darrell Evans belted a two-run homer and a triple in the first game and clubbed a grand slam homer in the nightcap for San Francisco. The Padres had 31 hits to 17 for the Giants in the doubleheader, but San Francisco made theirs count more. Gary Thomasson hit a three-run homer for San Francisco in the opener and Bobby Murcer had a three-run shot in the second game.

Braves 5-3, Expos 2-0

Andy Messersmith and Phil Niekro turned in a pair of sparkling efforts for Atlanta. Messersmith, 7-5, continued to pay dividends on his million-dollar contract with a five-hitter and a two-run single in the opener. Niekro, 6-4, tossed a four-hitter and struck out 10 batters in the nightcap.

Atlanta outfielder Rowland Office collected base hits in both games to extend his hitting streak to 29 games, just eight short of the NL record of 37 set by Tommy Holmes in 1945 with the Boston Braves.

Mets 5, Cardinals 4

Jerry Grote's leadoff home run in the ninth enabled New York to break a four-game losing streak. It was Grote's first hit in his last 24 at-bats. Tom Seaver, 8-5, bested Pete Falcone, 5-6, with an 11-strikeout performance. Del Unser homered for the Mets and Joe Ferguson hit one for St. Louis.

Cubs 6, Pirates 5

A throwing error by Bob Moose in the ninth inning, the fifth Pittsburgh error of the game, allowed the winning run to score as Chicago snapped a four-game losing streak. Willie Stargell and Dave Parker hit home runs for the Pirates. Only one of Chicago's runs was earned.

A scheduled second game was postponed by darkness with Pittsburgh leading 2-0 after four innings. It will be replayed from the start at an undetermined future date.

Union Orders Strikers To End Walkout

BOSTON (AP) — Union leaders ordered striking state employees back to work early today after "considerable progress was made in negotiations to end the three day walkout," one union leader said.

The move would end the first statewide strike of workers in Massachusetts history. The walkout was entering its fourth day.

Howard V. Doyle, chairman of the Alliance, a coalition of unions representing about 50,000 of the state's 65,000 public employees, said, "In consideration of the progress that has taken place, we are today ordering all workers back to work immediately."

Mediator Eric Schmertz, who conducted an intensive all-night bargaining session with both sides at a Boston hotel, said a final contract agreement had not been reached. He added, however, that significant progress on important issues had been made and that he would continue negotiations on the same intensive level this afternoon.

Schmertz would not say which issues remained unresolved.

The strike was called off only hours after Superior Court Judge Thomas E. Morse ordered fines of $200,000 a day against the Alliance if the strike continued today.

Doyle and Paul Quirk, secretary of the Alliance, faced personal fines of $5,000 per day.

The strike crippled vital state services during its duration with state hospitals, prisons, sewage treatment plants and human services agencies hardest hit.

Gov. Michael S. Dukakis had called the judge's decision "an important step toward the ending of the strike."

"I hope additional penalties and sanctions will not be necessary. I hope now the union leadership will finally realize we are serious and the court is serious."

State officials said late Wednesday the paychecks striking workers were scheduled to get today have been recomputed to deduct the time they have been away from their jobs.

Horse Theft

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Horse theft is increasing in Oklahoma where there are approximately 250,000 horses and the horse industry is valued at more than $900 million.

Dr. Wendell Sylvester, president of the Oklahoma Horsemen's Association, said the problem was once primarily a rural one, but now thefts occur at stables closer to metropolitan areas.

And where do those stolen horses go? Law enforcement officials believe their most probable destination is the slaughterhouse.

The mesquite tree can grow where no other tree can because its roots penetrate the soil deeply enough to find water.

WESTWARD TACK — The Soviet four-masted bark Kruzenshtern will visit the United States this summer as part of Operation Sail, a Bicentennial nautical parade of sailing vessels, of which the Kruzenshtern will be the largest.

NHL Moves Into Vacant Cleveland

CLEVELAND (AP) — The owners of the California Seals hockey team said Wednesday they were "making pretty good progress" on terms for a possible move of the National Hockey League club to Cleveland.

Melvin Swig and George Gund III, owners of the Seals, said they will remain in Cleveland today to continue their negotiations.

Swig said attorneys for the Richfield Coliseum, which was the home of the Cleveland Crusaders of the World Hockey Association, "wrote up a lease to see if we like it. We haven't worked everything out yet."

An opening for the Seals was created when it was announced the Crusaders would move to Hollywood, Fla.

A final decision on the move should come next week when both the WHA and NHL directors meet.

Swig and Gund said they were impressed with the Coliseum, calling it "one of the best arenas anywhere. The sightlines are exceptional."

Denver and San Jose, Calif., are two cities also mentioned as possible homes for the Seals.

The Seals while on the road ranked seventh among NHL teams in attendance. The team used to be owned by Charlie Finley, who also owns the Oakland A's.

"Cleveland is a marvelous city," said Gund, son of the former chairman of the board of Cleveland Trust. "It has tremendous potential. I've seen the interest in the past and I think there is a future."

"Geographically, Cleveland is very advantageous," Gund continued. "It is near Buffalo, Toronto and Boston in our division and the old (Cleveland) Barons had a great rivalry with the Buffalo Bisons."

Kentucky Derby winner Bold Forbes trained at Belmont Park in New York for his 1976 Louisville effort. Runner-up Honest Pleasure trained in Florida. The show horse, Elocutionist, trained in Arkansas.

Johnda Davis
To Speak To Children

Mrs. Johnda Davis was guest speaker Wednesday, June 23, for children in the "Wagon Train of Adventure," the Library's summer reading program for elementary school children.

Mrs. Davis' presentation centered on the life of Jonathan Alder, an eight-year-old Virginian youth, who was captured and adopted by Ohio Indians. Although Alder was reunited with his white family after reaching adulthood, he remained in Ohio, eventually settling near Plain City in Madison County.

The story of his life with the Indians has been preserved in "The Captivity of Jonathan Alder," a biography written by his grandson which will be reprinted this winter by the Pickaway County Historical Society in cooperation with the Ohio Historical Society.

Mrs. Davis, editor of the Pickaway County Historical Society's publication, the "Pickaway Quarterly", will repeat her presentation during the second session of the children's reading program.

Bike Riders Blamed For Two Accidents

The driver of a car, swerving to avoid a bicyclist, and two passengers were injured when the vehicle struck the cyclist and a parked auto. A mini-bike rider was hurt when he drove into an auto in another accident in Circleville.

The two cycle-related accidents occurred within a two-hour period Wednesday, according to Police Patrolmen Joe Stevenson and Howard Fletcher, who have once again issued a plea to parents to teach bicycle safety to their youngsters.

Darlene S. Sowers, 24, 223 N. Washington St., David E. Sowers, Jr., 3, Julia N. Sowers, 4, and Emery G. Grewell, 10, 412 S. Pickaway St., were all injured in the freak 4 p.m. accident at the intersection of S. Washington and E. Union Sts.

All were taken to Berger Hospital's emergency room by the Circleville Emergency Medical Team.

According to the report, Mrs. Sowers was driving north on S. Washington St. when Grewell rode his bicycle into the path of the automobile.

While trying to avoid the youngster, Mrs. Sowers clipped the rear of the bike and rammed into a parked car owned by Terry M. Leasure, 324 S. Washington St.

Dillard Posey Jr., 14, 330 Barnes Ave, was treated at Berger Hospital for a puncture wound to his right leg following a 5:46 p.m. accident on Harrison St., east of the S. Scioto St. intersection.

According to Ptl. Fletcher, Charles E. Rhoades, 48, 328 Walnut St., was pulling from the alley when he saw young Posey driving at him on a mini-bike.

Rhoades stopped his car, but young Posey apparently rode the mini-bike into the side of the vehicle.

Posey told Ptl. Fletcher that the accelerator stuck, causing the crash.

Joblessness Rate Falls

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The rate of joblessness decreased to 6.9 per cent in Ohio in May as more work became available, the Ohio Bureau of Employment Services said Wednesday.

Employment improved moderately. In May 1975, 4.31 million were employed. In the past month, 4.38 million had jobs.

The hardest hit industry during the recession—manufacturing—added 20,000 employees during the year, also lengthening the average workweek by 1.7 hours.

In May, 324,000 persons were without work, compared to 430,000 during the corresponding period the previous year. Unemployment dropped from the May 1975 rate of 9.1 per cent, compared to 7.4 per cent in April 1976.

"Ohio's unemployment rate will probably rise seasonally in June, as students enter the labor market for permanent or summer jobs," a report by the bureau said Wednesday. "With continued recovery, rate should drop and employment peak for year by October."

Factory employment reached 1.27 million with the average workweek up to 41.5 hours. Production employees in the factory grossed $249 a week last month, a record high that includes overtime but not the value of fringe benefits. Gross hourly earnings reached $6, also a record level. Average hourly earnings over the year amounted to a 10 per cent gain.

In nonmanufacturing, the pattern was mixed but the net result moved ahead. Construction, transportation and utilities still must recover to levels of a year earlier in employment. However, service industries increased nearly 28,000 while wholesale and retail trade added 9,000 to the payroll.
